

THE HANOVER HIGH SCHOOL BROADSIDE

Godspell Delivers

by Henry Butler

This year, the Hanover High School Footlighters decided to take on the ambitious undertaking of Godspell for the Spring Musical. While the choice was a bit worrisome to some, Director Mr. Haehnel, Director of Music Ms. Woods, and Director of Choreography Denise Frawley, had no problem with putting on an amazing show. The show was simply incredible. Jack Higgins was an outstanding Jesus, and Carter Lacrosse was an excellent Judas, and they were supported by a talented cast of eight story tellers, and the community of followers. A unique aspect of this production was that the entire cast was on stage throughout the show and participated in nearly all the singing/dancing numbers. They mastered the challenging songs and choreography, and the combined performances of the main soloists with the community of singers/dancers made a powerful emotional impact. Alex Taylor on lighting and Seamus Good on Set Design collaborated to give the set a depth that was compelling and is often hard to achieve. Congratulations to the cast, crew, and advising staff for doing such an amazing job!

French Footnotes

Words and photos cannot express the emotions felt by all when the group sang their first note in Pontigny. The acoustics were beyond anything imaginable -- When you hear the recordings you'll understand. See more at www.broadside.dresden.us and www.joigny2013.blogspot.com.

Rules of Assassins

Semi-Finalists Brendan Barth and Ben Manning; Teammates MIA: Duncan Piper, Ryan O'Rourke. They lost to team of Jay Pike, Harry Dwinell, Joel Anderson, Nick Bowen. Rules? Vehicle-in-Motion Rule; Prius Rule; HHS Parking Rules, Coop Rules, School Property Rules, etc., etc.

Campbell's First Cycle

by Paul Hurford

I interviewed Mr. Campbell last year just after he had just been hired to replace Ms. Gillespie as the new principal. I felt strongly that I should interview him once again to get the inside scoop on how his first year has been.

When asked about his high and lowlights of the year, Mr. Campbell answered positively:

"I think for me the highlights have really been how comfortable I feel here. This school is quite different from a lot of high schools and different from the high school I came from. I really liked where I was before, but I think the whole democratic model is something we talk about a lot. It has been really interesting and rewarding to be part of that as a Principal . . . to see the way that students are able to advocate for themselves and advocate for the school and make changes in a real way. It has been really fun for me. I don't know if it is a lowlight, but it has been a tremendously busy spring between having the NEASC visit and having to hire multiple teachers. Those are both wonderful parts of the job, but it has just been a busy few months so I haven't been able to be in classrooms as much as I like."

It was very interesting to hear about this from his point of view because as students at Hanover High we do not think about what it really takes to be a Principal and how much effort is involved on our behalf.

Mr. Campbell then spoke about how Hanover High School is different from other schools he has worked in:

"At the end of our NEASC visit on Wednesday afternoon the NEASC team gave a brief overview and what struck them during the visit was the same as what strikes me every day: The students and the way that you all interact with each other. No school is perfect, and we all have our challenges, and it is nice to see how excepting and respectful students are of one another. I think that people with diverse interests in some schools are apart, students often categorize themselves as athletes, artists, or academics, and I think people here often do lots of those things, and that is great."

We often forget how blessed we are as a community to have such a great environment in Hanover High School, and it was encouraging to hear this from the Principal himself.

Next he talked about how he involves himself with the student body:

"The typical ways that I get to involve my self with the student body include going to classrooms, athletic advents, and concerts. Mr. Smith is able to teach a class this semester, I use to be a [science] teacher, and I would love to find a way to be able to co-teach a class with someone. It would be a lot of fun. It is a different sort of relationship when you get to know a group of kids and are with them every day for a period of time. I have a scheduled meeting every week, assuming our schedules work, with Melanie Subbiah (Council Moderator), and Brendan Barth (Assistant Moderator). We talk about things on the council agenda, and I give them feedback on motions (pass or veto), but they can override my veto if they choose to do so. I go to council meetings as much as I can; I did pretty well thru the winter, but this Spring's schedule has interrupted my presence at the council meetings. Either Mr. Smith or I are at every meeting".

When asked about any unexpected discoveries or challenges that he had faced so far in the year, Mr. Campbell replied:

"We have had a large amount of folks to hire this year, which is exciting in some ways. It is very interesting to see the amazing people that apply to the school; the reputation of the school and the community of the students attract many incredible people. Also, every hiring committee has had two students who have given their input, and their input is every bit as valuable as mine or any teacher or anyone else. I went into this job trying not to have any concrete expectations because you need to get to know a place before you make any real judgments; I tried to be pretty open-minded about the school."

*Sophomore Cian Kelly and Principal Justin Campbell exchange greetings at the door. Mr. Campbell can be found here most mornings.
Photo by Paul Hurford.*

The discussion turned to the topic of how family life and being the Principal of Hanover High mix:

"I think it is going well, my son is about eighteen months old. He is still a little guy, but he loves coming to games; he loves climbing the bleachers in the gym. I have been part of schools for a long time, so it is great."

Finally, I asked Mr. Campbell if he would like to stay anything to the staff and student body.

"I would just like to thank the student body, the teachers, and the community for being very welcoming to me. It is quite something to come into a group of seven hundred fifty students and one hundred fifty staff members and to feel so welcomed."

As a school we should be aware of the great privilege that we have when it comes to the staff that show up everyday to keep it running smoothly. I would like to send a shout out to the Principal and the Broadside staff for the great three years that I have had on the school's newspaper.

Broadside Staff

General Editor: B Sachsse

Copy Editor: Liz Hass

Layout Editors: Conrad Koehler; Ziqi Zhang

Staff Advisor: Charlie Kehler

Staff Writers: Paul Hurford, Liz Haas, Henry Butler, Conrad Koehler,

Photographers: Elise Austin-Washburn, Aurora Berger

Nancy Kress:

Math teacher Nancy Kress will be moving on to teach at Lebanon High School next year. She will miss “the students and staff members I’ve worked with in the last fourteen years.” Her favorite thing about HHS has been her “Algebra 2 classes for the past two years.” She praises her students for “hav[ing] endured experimental lesson plans with patience, and risen to the challenge of difficult work without complaint and with enthusiasm, creativity and perseverance,” and adds that she is “sad that [she] will not be here to see them continue to grow and finish high school.” However, “situations in which students find it difficult to recognize their own greatest skills and talents in the context of striving to do more, take more honors classes, and get admitted to the most competitive colleges” is something she will not miss.

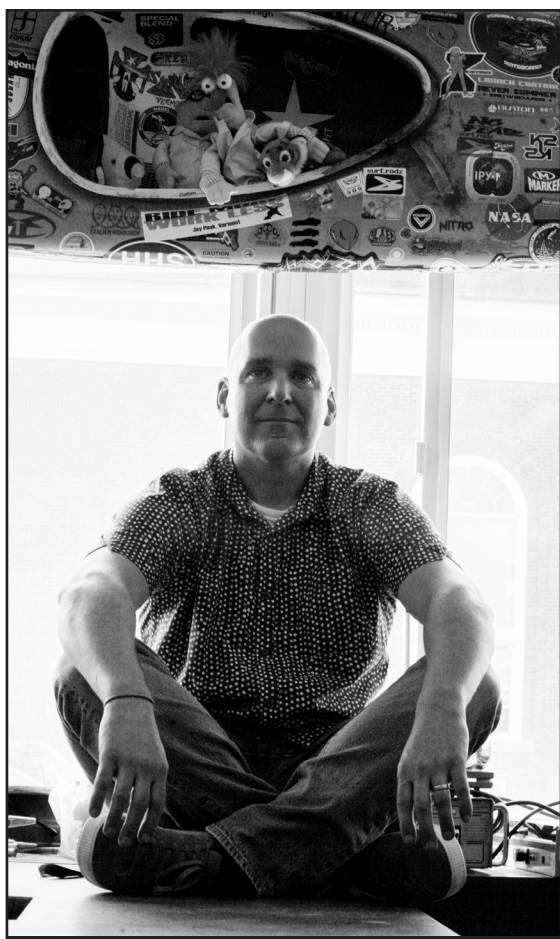

Over her fourteen years at Hanover, Ms. Kress has seen students “much more appreciative of the work teachers do on their behalf.” Hanover High School will miss Ms. Kress next year; Lebanon math students are gaining a great teacher.

Ms. Kress’s final message to Hanover students is this:

“The right future path for you is the one where you will find things you love to do and where you will be appreciated for the contribution you will make. The right college might recognize how wonderful you are before you even know that it is the right place for you. Seize that oppor-

Kevin Lavigne:

Chemistry, CAPPS, and Evolution and Genetics teacher Kevin Lavigne will be taking a two year leave of absence beginning next year. He will be teaching in Tianjin, China, the fourth largest city in China, at an international school. He is excited for this opportunity and to experience life in a city with a population of 13 million. Mr. Lavigne will be returning to Hanover in the fall of 2015, and we wish him the best while he is teaching in China.

Calculus and Advanced Math teacher and HHS Math Team coach Greta Mills is moving to Florida with her husband next year. She will be teaching at Oxbridge Academy, a school focusing on project based learning and located on the Palm Beaches. She will miss Hanover’s “staff (especially those in the math department), students, arranging for the a cappella groups, working with the math team, the Sudoku club, and serving on council.” She will not however miss “snow, winter, half days, and teaching in a room whose early fall [and] late spring temperatures reach the nineties.” She is “looking forward to a winter with no snow for the first time in [her] life.”

Over her twelve-year career at Hanover, Ms. Mills has seen the school change significantly. “I was here before the renovation, so the facility change is the biggest physical change,” she comments. “It’s interesting, too, how technology and the facility have changed the way we teach and interact. I think most of the changes are positive. But in the old building, there was much more small-group interaction - the cafeteria was tiny, there was no atrium, the senior class had a small space reserved for them. The small spaces lent themselves well to some great conversations. The larger spaces in the renovated building, combined with technology, have led to a really different vibe in the common areas, and spaces like the MRC have seen changes in who visits, and why.”

She also adds “I’ve been at Hanover since the fall of 2000, and it has been the best place to work, to teach, and to grow. I am definitely not the teacher I was when I arrived, and I am so grateful to have had the opportunity to challenge myself while working to challenge my students. It’s been a great 12 years!”

Greta Mills:

Addante, Ricardo A. --- University of California at Santa Barbara
 Alexander, Giulia R --- Gap Year - Selamta
 Alibozek, Rachel Ann Ann --- Elmira College
 Anderson, Joel --- Montana State University, Bozeman
 Andrews, Dashiell --- United States Military Academy
 Augustinowicz, Liza L. --- Allegheny College
 Austin-Washburn, Elise S --- University of New Hampshire
 Bardos, Aidan Lorraine Lorraine --- Wesleyan University
 Bartels, Sophia M --- Colby College
 Barth, Brendan W --- Dartmouth College
 Beach, Matthew B --- Boston University
 Beaubien, Jean-Luc C --- Dartmouth College
 Bedford, Hannah P --- Gap Year
 Bedford, Monica W Waterman --- St. Lawrence University
 Berger, Aurora --- Savannah College of Art and Design
 Bergeron, Augustina --- River Valley Community College
 Boillotat, Jenna D --- Colby-Sawyer College
 Bowen, Nicholas Terry T --- Johnson & Wales University
 Bradley, Katherine Elizabeth --- Dartmouth College
 Brechbuhl, Katherine --- United States Air Force Academy
 Brighton, Elizabeth MacKenzie --- George Washington University
 Brisson, Chloe L --- University of Miami
 Bristol, Genevieve W --- University of Maine
 Brooks, Sawyer W --- Oberlin College
 Brown, Alex R --- Bates College
 Brown, James Sinclair --- Dartmouth College
 Burriss, Samuel A --- Burlington College
 Butler, Henry R --- Trinity College
 Carsey, Gary Wayne --- Johnson & Wales University
 Chen, Katherine Y --- Harvard College
 Chobanian, Anna M --- Quinnipiac University
 Choukas, Nathaniel R --- Trinity College
 Coates, Matthew G --- UVM
 Comstock, Kendra Michelle --- Oklahoma City University
 Cornell, Maxwell E --- Gap Year
 Couture, Matthew Robert --- Castleton State College
 Coyle, Jacqueline M --- Boston College
 Cravero, Joseph M --- College of the Holy Cross
 Cutting, Jesse Smith --- Paul Smith's College
 D'Orsi, Nicholas Vincent --- College of Charleston
 Daniels, Alexis J --- Johnson State College
 Danna, Morgan P --- St. Lawrence University
 Davis, Richard --- Johnson State College
 DeLucia, William L --- Lehigh University
 Demarest, Ethan Barnes B --- Ringling College of Art and Design
 Denton, Bethany Ying --- St. Olaf College
 DeRoy, Christian E --- University of Vermont
 Dietz, Eloise Rose --- Dartmouth College
 Donnelly, Elizabeth Frances --- University of South Florida
 Dunfey, Edward R --- Bard College
 Dwinell, Harry James James --- University of Colorado at Boulder
 Estes, Zachary Hayden --- St. Lawrence University
 Fall, Sarah R --- Centre College
 Farr, Ryan D --- St. Lawrence University
 Finley, Samuel R --- SUNY College at Potsdam
 Fleming-Steinberg, Isaac D --- Northeastern University
 Foster, Aset --- Richmond University in London
 Gallimore, Sarah Elizabeth --- University of New Hampshire
 Gantrish, Liam W --- Kalamazoo College
 Gardner, Parker T --- Dartmouth College
 Gaudet, Kelly E --- Dartmouth College
 Gehlbach, John --- University of Pennsylvania (Biochemistry)
 Glenshaw, Hannah --- Hobart and William Smith Colleges
 Goss, Parker Russell --- Sewanee: The University of the South
 Gow, Elizabeth H --- Paul Mitchell Beauty School
 Greenwood, Drake D D --- University of Colorado at Boulder
 Grussing, Margaret D --- Marist College
 Haas, Elizabeth Ann --- University of New Hampshire
 Hanley, Allison E --- Northeastern University
 Harris, Cole E --- University of Puget Sound
 Harris, Martin A --- University of Oregon
 Hayes, Benjamin W. --- University of Puget Sound

Higgins, John L.M. --- Ithaca College
 Himmelstein, Joshua D --- College of William and Mary Hoehn, Alexander Karl Karl --- The Evergreen State College
 Hum-Hyder, Thomas J J --- Trinity College
 Hurford, Paul T --- Gap Year, then Emmanuel College
 Irwin, Katherine R --- Colby College
 Jayanti, Siddhartha V --- Princeton University
 Jin, Matthew G --- Dartmouth College
 Jodoin, Jamison P --- University of New Hampshire
 Johnson, Hannah M M --- Cedarville University (Nursing)
 Keating, Carl M --- Northeastern University
 Kehler, Mira Carol --- University of New Hampshire
 Kenkel, Jonathan K --- St. Olaf College
 Kittredge, Alyssa Perry --- Traveling
 Kuehlert, Niels Torben --- Cornell University
 LaCrosse, Carter G --- Northwestern University
 Lacy, Suriya D --- The University of Findlay
 Lahr-Pastor, Katerina --- University of California at San Diego
 Lan, Eric --- Parsons The New School for Design
 LaPoint, Jacob M --- University of Maine
 LaRock, Addison --- University of Puget Sound
 Licciardi, Olivia L Lynn --- Merrimack College
 Little, John W --- University of New Hampshire
 Lubrano, Georgia W W --- Colby College
 Lyons, Gwynn G --- Stanford University
 MacMillen, Dewey Lorin --- Northeastern University
 Manning, Benjamin S --- Washington University in St. Louis
 Martin, Joshua M --- Gap Year
 McGowan, Kalin --- Trinity College
 Mellert, Samuel B --- Bates College
 Menard, Katrina A --- Bucknell University
 Merrens, Samuel J --- Dartmouth College
 Miller, Ellen M --- College of Charleston
 Mills, Grey S --- Hampshire College
 Minelli, Kelli M --- University of New Hampshire
 Montgomery, James I --- Plymouth State University
 Morrison, Brett N --- The Culinary Institute of America
 Mott, Sophie Cynthia --- Traveling
 Mueller, Christian D D --- Elon University
 Mullen, Nicholas John --- University of Vermont
 Murphy, Joseph --- University of New Hampshire
 Neumann, Kyle August --- Montana State University, Bozeman
 Nichols, Timothy Ryan --- Working
 Noonan, Claudia L --- Hobart and William Smith Colleges

Northrup, Samantha N --- Regency Beauty Institute in Texas
O'Leary, Matthew P --- Brandeis University
O'Rourke, Ryan D --- Xavier University
Obbard, Theodore L --- University of Hartford
Oseid, Eric A --- St. Olaf College
Osheyack, Daniel --- St. Edward's University
Pentland, Lilian --- University of California at Santa Cruz
Pike, James T Talbot --- Elmira College
Piper, Duncan J --- Middlebury College
Psomas, Anastasia H --- Ringling College of Art and Design
Pult, Athena T --- Oberlin College
Quijano, Nicholas E --- Wheelock College
Ray, Laura Taylor --- Skidmore College
Reid, Graham H --- Kenyon College
Richardson, Galen --- University of British Columbia
Rogers, Ethan B --- University of Vermont
Rollenhagen, Aline --- Attending a college in Germany
Rollins, Atticus B --- Year off then attend Seton Hall University
Rothwell-Ferraris, Cyrus --- Clemson University
Sabatelle III, Robert Charles --- Case Western Reserve University
Salvatoriello, Mary A --- Springfield College
Sayles, Gregory B --- Colorado College
Schwartz, Erica S --- Tufts University
Seaman, Eleanor C --- Davidson College
Serat, Simone --- Duke University
Siegel, Jacob William W --- Hamilton College - NY
Siegel, Raina D --- Occidental College
Simpson, Hunter B. --- Traveling, then University of Puget Sound
Singh, Harangad --- McGill University (Medical) Slayton, Daniel Gregory --- Southern Methodist University
Smith, Elizabeth Seymour --- Dartmouth College
Smith, Hannah C --- Whitman College
Smith, Ian Magan --- University of Vermont
Sobel, Hannah R --- Middlebury College
Spalding, Megan Elizabeth --- Lewis & Clark College
Stadler, Henry M --- Indiana University at Bloomington
Steiner, Vaughn M M --- University of Vermont
Stephenson, Rita Sakiko --- University of Washington
Stone, Casimir Mitchell Edel --- University of Michigan
Strohbehn, Ian A Austin --- Middlebury College
Subbiah, Melanie S --- Williams College
Taylor, Austin Marshall --- University of Denver
Taylor, Zachary Armstrong --- College of Charleston
Thompson, Anne Catherine Catherine --- College of the Holy Cross

Tosteson, Helen Asimina --- Cornell University
Trautlein, Sarah C --- University of South Carolina
Turkington, Simon Callahan --- Georgetown University
Uryase, Craig --- Furman University
Valentine, Halli R --- Keene State College
van Leer, Samantha G --- Vassar College
Vincelette, Katherine E --- Saint Lawrence University
Vogt, Lydia --- Saint Lawrence University
Voigt, George A --- Colby College
Walker, Safiya I Ilena --- Brown University
Webster, Emma Katharine --- Bard College
Weiss, Jessica T --- Bowdoin College
Wetmore, Jenevra Ann --- Middlebury College
White, Augustas T --- University of San Francisco
White, David --- Tulane University
Wilcox, Oren F --- Dartmouth College
Wild, Robert G --- Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute
Williams, Alexis C --- Bard College
Williams, Noah N N --- Williams College
Wilson, Daniel Laurence --- Earlham College
Winer, Molly Elizabeth Joy --- Brandeis University
Yesman, Rain Orion --- Southern Maine Community College
Young, Hayden A --- Wittenberg University
Yu, Shuo --- University of Pennsylvania (Biophysics)
Yukica, Joseph M --- University of New Hampshire
Zeng, Jiade --- Purdue University
Zerphy, Olivia Crow --- Vassar College
Zhang, Ziqi --- Boston University

Congratulations Class of 2013!

Photo by Peter Lange and Elizabeth Greene.

Paul Barker:

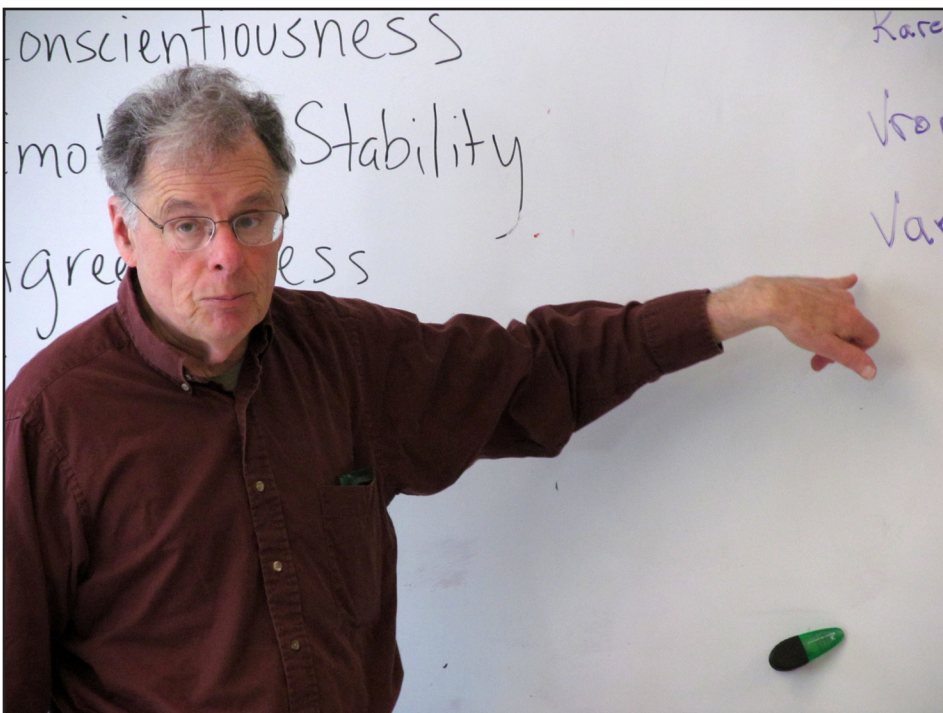

Paul Barker, or Señor Barker as his Spanish students call him, is retiring this year. His plans for next year are not nailed down yet, but he does plan to be “Travel[ing], reading, relaxing, hiking, resuming running, [and] making music.” He will miss “interacting every day with students and colleagues.” However, he will not miss “smart phone addicts, first period tardiness, drills, [and] unproductive meetings.”

Señor Barker has been at Hanover High School through the renovation, which he says is the biggest change he has seen in the school. For him, “Standouts are the new gym, the auditorium, the atrium, the media center, the cafe, the turf field, and improved technology in our classrooms.” His favorite things about Hanover are “all [his] friends [especially] in the Foreign Language Department, the overall friendly and courteous atmosphere that exists in our school, [and] making music in the Acoustic Cafe.”

Don Buck:

Latin teacher Don Buck is retiring this year and will be “resuming serious guitar playing” and “auditing classics classes at Dartmouth” next year. Mr. Buck will miss “kids’ sense of humor” and says his other favorite things about Hanover are students’ “genuine interest in learning; or, if they don’t love a certain subject, their interest in learning how to work accurately.” He will not, however, miss “increasing requirements from ‘educationologists’ (professional administrators) that teachers spend time on non-classroom busywork.”

Mr. Buck also praised the changes that came about through the 2006 renovations, remarking that the increased “space created room in which kids and teachers were less frustrated by physical conditions and could concentrate on teaching and learning.”

John Galton:

English teacher Mr. Galton, famous for teaching Russian Literature, arguable the most challenging English course at Hanover High School, is retiring this year. He will “miss the sharing of thoughts and challenging of ideas” in his classroom; however, he says he will not miss “the pressure,” as “grading papers has begun to make [him] shudder.”

Mr. Galton’s favorite things about Hanover have been the students and when “years ago and for several years in a row, on a day set aside to celebrate Earth Day, several of us cycled to Lyme and back.” “Now, that was edifying,” he adds.

His plans for next year are “many and varied and glorious and oh, there are also the grandchildren!” And as far as changes in school go, he says there have been none “since Socrates wrapped his toga tighter and drank.”

Peter Lange:

Photography teacher Peter Lange, or Pete as his students call him, is retiring after many years in the darkrooms. He first came to Hanover High as a student in 1968, and insists that the school “hasn’t changed a nit,” offering for evidence that “Bill Murphy and Ford Daley are still here.” He does however admit: “the food has gotten a lot better.”

Pete says he “like[s] the students” and “will miss getting paid” but “will not miss going to work with migraine[s].” Next year he looks forward to “finally getting to do some of [his] own art projects without so many distractions” and completing his house.

Deanna Stygles:

Special Education teacher Deanna Stygles will only be returning to HHS occasionally as a substitute next year. She will be using her extra time to “teach native cultural ways” through the Native American group she is a part of while continuing her research on Native American culture. Her favorite things about Hanover are “the students and staff.” “I have worked for other school districts over the years and none compare to this one,” she adds. She will miss learning from her students as much as they learn from her and how they “keep [her] feeling young and involved in life.”

In regard to changes she has seen at the school, she says: “Changes occur all the time and most of them have been for the good of the school.”

Jane Woods:

Choral director and director of Footnotes, one of HHS’s performing ensembles, Jane Woods will be retiring this year after twenty-three years of teaching at Hanover. She will miss “the daily enjoyment of the sound of young voices combining into beautiful music [and] sharing very special musical experiences and performances with HHS singers and instrumentalists.” Her favorite things about Hanover have been the “enthusiastic, sincere, and talented students, wonderful colleagues, and [that it is] a place where learning never stops and creativity and excellence are valued.” The only thing will not miss is the “often hectic schedule.”

Next year Ms. Woods plans on using her time to “travel [and] visit family.” Over her twenty-three years at Hanover she has witnessed the renovations which brought a “nice expanded music area,” over one hundred and fifty more students in the school as a whole, the expansion of the music department, and notices that “the college process seems much more intense.”

Ms. Woods will be greatly missed by her Chorus and Footnotes students and the music department as a whole. After nearly a quarter of a century of teaching at Hanover, she has become a symbol of the music department as a whole, and we wish her a relaxing retirement and happy travels next year.

Crew Princesses Cast a Spell at HHS

Despite the sincere and potent wishes of the Crew Princesses, the Hanover Invitational Meet on Sunday, June 2, was cancelled due to a sudden storm. Everyone was surprised by the speed of the black cloud. No one was injured as the boats were quickly taken out of the water. Photo by Peter Lange.

Hanover Lacrosse - Quarters & Finals

Noah Huizenga in the Div I State Quarter-Finals. HHS lost to Londonderry. Photo by Mike Stinson

Grace Croitoru tries to keep the ball during the Hanover vs. Portsmouth Division II girls lacrosse championship in Manchester, Tuesday, June 3. Hanover lost to Portsmouth 8-14. Photo by Sarah Priestap, courtesy of Valley News.